

Dylan Young
Graduate Assistant

We are pleased to welcome Dylan Young as the new Graduate Assistant supporting the work of the Lehigh University School Study Council. Dylan is currently pursuing a Ph.D. in School Psychology at Lehigh University. She earned her undergraduate degree in Psychology, with a minor in Early Intervention Special Education, from Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond.

Dylan brings a strong background in early childhood education, having worked as an instructional assistant in several school districts and as a Literacy Specialist with preschool-aged children, supporting the development of foundational skills in letter recognition and phonics. At Lehigh, she is actively involved in research with Dr. J. Cameron Anglum, focusing on educational policy and staff turnover, and with Dr. Robin Hojnoski, examining early math learning in young children. She also serves as Vice President of the School Psychology Club, helping to coordinate peer mentorship and student-led programming.

Originally from south-west Virginia, Dylan moved to Bethlehem last fall and enjoys exploring the Lehigh Valley. She especially looks forward to cooking and connecting with friends during their weekly get-togethers. Dylan is excited to contribute to the mission of the Study Council and looks forward to supporting educators and leaders across the region.
